THE MASTER CODE!!!

Unfortunately, one master code does not always work. Please try each of the following and figure out which one works for you.

Stage 1

The difference in stage 1 and stage 2 is that stage 1 codes are codes which need to be activated BEFORE you load your save game data. This is due to the fact that once you load your save game data the game gains 2834 new values. When using a Codebreaker Advance system the system changes dramatically. This is because the codebreaker uses the following format: xxxxxxxx yyyy, where the xs are the value address and the ys are the import value. When the game gets 2834 new values all the value address' go up by 2834 (hexadecimaly). This means that when encoding a stage 1 code to a stage 2 code you add 2834 (hexadecimaly). To do so, just open the windows calculator, switch it to Scientific mode, change the type of mode to Hex, type in the first 8 digits of your code, change the mode to Dec, add 2834, and finally change the mode back to Hex. To encode stage 2 codes to stage 1 do the same things except subtract instead of add.

Converting VBA To CB

Since I have found that most people have the Virtual Boy Advance emulator I have included this section to instruct people on how to change VBA codes to CB codes. I owe this information to Torent Silverfox.

The transfer is really simple. VBA codes begin with a "0". To change the codes to CB you need to change the "0" to an "8". Another thing which is required is that you must place the two values in that are at the end of the VBA code and place them in the first two digit slots in the CBA final four values. This is illustrated below.

VBA Codes:

0XXXXXXXX : yy

When Converted To CB:

8XXXXXXXX yy00

This is a simple and effective way to edit the codes from one mode to the other.
