

Mega Man Battle Network Chip Guide

by Andrew Smeja

Updated on Oct 22, 2003

Introduction.

The purpose of this FAQ is to help anyone who wants to complete there data library in Megaman battle network 1. This isn't a simple introduction as I plan to have everything about this faq in this part of it (unlike most faqs where most of the information here is at the end). Currently I have only expressed approval to have this faq on the following sites:IGN, Gamefaqs, Neo Seeker, and Megaman Network (not all of these have them on there site but I did express to them that they had permission. There are a few other sites I might release this to but those may very well be the only ones if someone doesn't ask permission to put it on there site (yes I want permission if there isn't permission I want credit and for it to be unaltered unless I say otherwise).

Credit.

I have done nearly all of this faq by myself. But there are a few people that did help me. The guy who wrote the map faq for MMBN1. The_Bard For telling me where to find Quake 2 and recover 300. Higeru Yamitaro (he helped inspire me).

At this time I think that I will write a similar faq for MMBN2 but I am uncertain as of this time. If you want to make sure I do write another faq for MMBN2 and 3 (and Transmission and any other Megaman battle network game that might be made) email me at andrewsmeja2001@yahoo.com Make the title something like to the chip Otaku (I hope in writing this faq I have made myself worthy of the self proclaimed title) if you want to make sure I read it. I don't really plan on adding anything to this faq once it has been released. I am sure that there are certain codes of chips that I have not gotten and possibly a few other things such as an extra way or to get a chip or two. But the point was to make sure there was atleast one way to get each chip in this faq.

Reason I wrote this faq.

It took me a very long time to write this faq. Actually I would say if you take all the hours that I spent writing this faq and then added them up together I probably haven't used up more then 2-6 days worth of my life. But when I was writing this or playing the game to find something I was focusing only on that. When I have worked on this faq I was working very hard. There is more then a 100 kb (128 when I wrote this part of the faq) worth of text and at the time I am writing this statement I believe the faq to be within a week or so of being released. Some people may wonder why I didn't get a lot of help from others and complete this in half the time. Well that was part of the challenge.

Mystery data and related.

The mystery data. They aren't completely random. In each internet area if you go to one mystery data save and then examine it (by pressing the A button) and then turning it off and doing that again there is a good chance you will get something different. But there are only so many things in each internet area. Which mystery data in the area doesn't make any difference. In each internet area there is atleast 3 different chips you can get by doing this but in a very few of them there are more. Without further ado what you probably came here for.
