II. INTRODUCTION

This FAQ is an EXHAUSTIVE list of all Armor, Shield, Blade, and Accessory stats.

I have squeezed everything tight together so it could be printed on a single page. I also tried to keep everything as clear as possible. You will note the helpful headings above each distinct group of items.

If you have questions or comments concerning this FAQ or the game, please email me at braveheart4jesus@hotmail.com. I cannot guarantee I will respond but I will try. Please put "VAGRANT STORY" in the subject of your email to ensure it will not be deleted by mistake.

I am sure with all the figures and tables in this FAQ that there may be mistakes. I am rather picky about having accurate information, so email me if something is amiss.

III. HOW THE STATS WERE DETERMINED

You will note that some items contain stats for the class and affinities, while some do not. This is because only those items that are actually possible to obtain from enemies or chests have full stats. The others, which can only be forged, only contain the stats that are not changed in the combining process.

The way I found out what items were actually obtainable is through Tilt's "Enemy Guide" FAQ. You will find it at:

<http://users.erols.com/tiltonj/vs/>

Once I determined what items were obtainable, I found out the stats either by the spoils of war or by analyzing the enemy. Then after I had this information, I determined the relation of stats in regards to material. For example, a Bronze piece of armor is always 2 more points in strength than a Leather armor; a Damascus shield is always 1 more point in intelligence than a Hagane shield; etc. With all the formulas, I simply applied them to every single combination of items. Note that there are some items that are not possible to forge but are simply listed anyway out of spite. For example, the Hand of Light will never be anything but its original material. The same is true for the Holy Win.

IV. COMBINING

Whenever you combine, some stats get changed. The ones that do are the DP, PP, Class, Affinity, and Type stats. The following gives a general overview of how the computer determines the resulting stat:

DP: The two stats are added together and divided by two

PP: The two stats are added together and divided by two

Class: The highest stat of the two pieces always remains the same. The lowest stat of the two pieces usually remains the same. The other stats are added together, then multiplied by a rate (see below). Note that if the stats are the same, there is a chance that they will remain the same.

Affinity: The highest stat of the two pieces always remains the same. The lowest stat of the two pieces usually remains the same. The other stats are added together, then multiplied by a rate (see below). Note that if the stats are the same, there is a chance that they will remain the same.

Type: The two stats are added together and then multiplied by a rate (see below).

Combining Rates

There are three rates when combining. There are rules to getting any of these three rates. However, the rules are vague and not definitively known to me. Also, there are exceptions to every rule. It seems the programmers threw some "rotten apples" into the mix, so sometimes things won't go as planned. However, the following information should suffice:

- 78.7% Rate - The two pieces are of the same material and have fairly similar stats and/or levels
- 57.2% Rate - The two pieces are of the same material but have somewhat different stats and/or levels
- 57.2% Rate - The two pieces are of different material but have fairly similar stats and/or levels

38.5% Rate - The two pieces are of different material and have somewhat different stats and/or levels

V. DEFINITIONS AND CLARIFICATIONS

The headings to the tables contain abbreviations, which are grouped together by related subject:

M : Material (L=Leather, W=Wood, B=Bronze, S=Silver, I=Iron, H=Hagane, D=Damascus)

TY : Type of weapon (B=Blunt, E=Edged, P=Piercing)

DP : Damage Points

PP : Phantom Points

G : Gem Slots

RA : Range

RI : Risk

ST : Strength

IN : Intelligence

AG : Agility

HU : Human

BE : Beast

UN : Undead

PH : Phantom

DR : Dragon

EV : Evil

PH : Physical

AI : Air

FI : Fire

EA : Earth

WA : Water

LI : Light

DA : Dark

BL : Blunt

ED : Edged

PI : Piercing

Note that the items in the tables are listed in order of levels, not alphabetically. Each armor, shield, or blade has a level to it-- a sort of hierarchy. The higher the level, the harder it is to forge (essentially, the higher the level, the better the item).
