The goal of this section is to explain how to use the search function, and explains how the layout is set up for each question.

To find the answers to the questions within this FAQ, it is best to use the search function within the program you are viewing with. The search function varies depending on the program you are viewing this with, but is commonly found on the top bar. More specifically for Windows, it would be Edit->Find, or hold down the ctrl button on the keyboard and press the f key. The best method I found quickest and accurately is to search for part of the question.

Example search: "you have lost more"

It is quick and easy to type, and only brings up one result. If you type part of the question, did not find any results, and ensured the spelling of every word was correct, then try shortening the search by one word. You can also try another part of the question to search for. Why it did not find the question the first time could be the result of a typo in the FAQ, incorrect spelling, or even the incorrect word for the part of the question you searched.

An easy strategy for questions containing a question mark at the end is to search for the last word in the question followed by a question mark.

Example search: "home?"

While it is not always a guarantee to be a direct one time search and find, doing this will certainly shorten the amount of typing requirement. For multiple finds like the one in the previous example, just read the question to ensure if it is the one you have.

There are certain questions and answers for each round. Rarely two separate rounds have the same question but with a different amount of answers, and sometimes different answers. Rounds are not too important when using the search feature, but sometimes you want to know what round the question is located for what you are looking for.

How the layout is done for each question is: The top contains the question, the text below the question on the left side are the answers, and to the right of the answer is the amount of points the family earns for the corresponding answer.

The game is not very difficult to play through after experiencing a few playthroughs. This game does not provide any explanation on how to play Family Feud, and does not state what the goal of each round is or what the goal of the whole game is. Although it can be self-explanatory while playing through, gaining full knowledge of the whole game can prove more advantageous, and that is precisely what the goal of this section is.

6 - Opening 9

Upon entering the main menu, you are given the options of whether to play a 1 Family Game, 2 Family Game, or Practice. Choosing to play a 1 Family Game allows you to play as one family against the computer player, which the computer player plays as the other family. Playing a 2 Family Game allows you to play against another real person, which who holds the second controller to play. Practice allows you to play by yourself through the whole game as normal in order to prepare for the real game against an opponent (NOTE: some alterations will need to be considered when playing Practice due to no opponent).

After choosing an option from the main menu, the Option Menu will be displayed. The options available along with a description of their effect are:

- Main Theme: Whether the main theme music should always play throughout the

- Think Music: Whether the think music should play while a question is being answered
- Timer: Whether the timer should be enabled upon answering a question (this option does not affect the computer player)
- Bullseye Round: Whether the Bullseye Round will be played

Once the options are set, the next task to do before actually playing the game is to create your family. You can choose the family team to your pleasing by pressing Select on the controller. There are four available families to choose from. You must enter a name with at least one character or space, but are not able to enter any numbers into the entry.

Once the family name has been chosen, you will be asked if you are returning champs. If you are returning champs you will be required to enter a password to acquire the money you have won in a previous game. The password has no other significant effect in the game other than displaying the total amount of money you have won, so there is no matter on the family you have chosen for password acceptance. The password entry box can be left blank if you do not want to or are unable to enter a password. If an incorrect password was entered, the game will continue on without saying it was incorrect. If the password was entered correctly, the total winnings will be displayed in the box and the family will be clapping.

The game is played in a standard order of: Bullseye Round (if enabled in the options menu), Single Round, Double Round, Triple Round, and finally the Fast Money Round. The Bullseye Round questions are based off of the possible list of questions from the Single Round, Double Round, and Triple Round. The Single Round questions can have a maximum of twelve available answers, and the Double Round and Triple Round can have a maximum of six. The goal by completing Single Round, Double Round, and Triple Round in total is for a family to receive 300 or more points to be able to play the Fast Money Round to win money.

The game first starts off with the Bullseye Round. The goal of the Bullseye Round is to determine how much money each family could be eligible to receive if they win the whole game. If the option for the Bullseye Round was set to "No", then this round will be skipped, and each family will only be eligible to receive a maximum of $5000 dollars after winning the game.

Each family member will have a face-off one-by-one, starting from the captain and ending with the last one in the line. At the face-off stand a surveyed question will be asked and either of the contestants have to ring-in in order to be able to answer. A contestant can ring-in from the time the box is blank in the game to a few seconds after the question has been fully asked. If no one rings-in to answer the question and the timer buzzer goes off, the game will ignore the face-off and continue on to the next step. If a contestant rings-in and answers correctly, they have won the match. If the answer was wrong, the other contestant will have the opportunity to answer. If they answer correctly, they won the match, but if both contestants get a wrong answer, the game will continue on to the next step.

Upon winning a match, the winning family member's family will be eligible to receive a greater amount of money. The first match is worth $1000, the second match is worth $2000, the third worth $3000, the fourth worth $4000, and the final match worth $5000. The maximum amount either family can receive upon being the first ones to successfully answer each question is $20,000.

6 - Single Round 9

The first actual round required to play, and what helps on determining who will be the winner of the game is the Single Round. The round starts off similarly of how the Bullseye Round face-offs are. For detailed rules about the face-off in this round and future rounds, visit the Face-Off subsection. The family member who wins the face-off has the option to "pass or play" the question. If the winning family member chooses to pass the question to the other family, the other family must answer the question due to being the playing family. If play was chosen, the family member's family will be the ones who're answering the question.

The playing family order begins from the family member who comes after the member who was in the face-off last (example: if the third member was the last one to be asked a question in the Bulls-Eye Round then the fourth member begins the Single Round). For every answer a family member gets incorrect, the family will receive a strike. In sequential order each family member has an opportunity to answer the question until three strikes have been received, or until all available answers are have been exhausted. If the family receives three strikes, the other family has the opportunity to steal the points that are in the bank. The stealing family has one opportunity to answer the question, with the captain required to give the answer (NOTE: Originally on the television game show the stealing family would "huddle up" before the playing family has three strike to determine the best answer to say). If the stealing family says a correct answer that has not already been said they receive the points. Ff they are wrong the playing family receives the points from the bank. If the playing family can provide all answers on the board before receiving three strikes, they receive the points from the bank.

6 - Double Round 9

The Double Round plays similarly as how the Single Round plays, but with a few differences:

- There are a fewer amount of answers available for the questions
- The amount of points from each answer doubles when going into the bank
- The family member after who did the face-off in the Bulls Eye Round will be the next one to face-off

Everything else in the round will play equally as it did in the Single Round.

6 - Triple Round 9

The Triple Round plays similarly as how the Double Round plays, but has a few more changes to accommodate it being the last competition round:

- There are more frequently fewer answers possible than the Double Round, though that is not always the case
- The amount of points from each answer triples when going into the bank

After the Triple Round has completed, a family must reach 300 points or more in order to be the one who moves on to the Fast Money Round. If no family reaches 300 points or more this round will be continuously played until a family does reach 300 points. Once a family reaches 300 points or more, they will be the winning family and will move on to the Fast Money Round. The family who lost will be finished playing the game and will not win anything.

6 - Fast Money Round 9

The family who will only play this round is who has at least 300 points after completing the Triple Round. They will be eligible to receive the amount of money that was specified before the Single Round started. Since one family is not in the game anymore, this round is less of a competition and more concentrated on your ability to provide quick responses to the asked survey questions, and try to have the answers said be the ones worth the most points.

This round is the only time where there will be questions asked containing answers with numbers. As it is impossible to input numbers for questions asking a non-numerical number, this will also be the only round where numerical answers can be entered. If a question requires a number to be used as an answer, the cursor will be on the number zero by default, and the ability to enter letters will be disabled (although blank spaces can still be entered).

This round requires two family members to play. By default the game will choose the first two members in the line-up (NOTE: In the television game show any two members of the family can play the round).

The first family member will approach the face-off stand while the other would be put in the isolation booth (not shown in this game, although in the television game show the other family member who is also in Fast Money Round must not know what answers that is on the board). Five questions will be asked, and there will be one minute and 40 seconds to answer all of them if the timer was enabled in the options menu. There are no pauses in the timer after the first question has been asked.

The question can always be passed by leaving the answer box blank and by pressing Start or going to "End" and pressing the confirm button on the controller. Once all five questions are answered or if time runs out, the answers will be displayed on the board. Once all of the answers are displayed, it will be time for the other family member to approach the face-off stand to play the round (but remember, they ARE NOT suppose to know the answers that are already on the board!). The same questions will be asked again in the same order, and two minutes will be given this time to answer all of the with the timer enabled.

No answer on the board that gave points can be answered again, though any answer that was said previously and gave no points is fine to say (normally in the television game show even if the answer previously said resulted in no points, it could not be said again). Once all questions have been answered or if time runs out, the board will display the rest of the answers given and the points they result.

If 200 points or more have been accumulated as the total, then the family has won the whole game! The family will receive the amount of money that was mentioned before the Single Round. If the total is less than 200 points, the family will receive the amount of money based on this formula:

$$[\text{Total Points for the Round}] * 5 = [\text{Total Amount of Money Received}]$$

The minimum amount that can be received if the family lost the game is $0, and the maximum amount they can receive if they also loss would be $995 (199 points). If a player made it to the Fast Money Round, a password will be provided along with displaying the total final amount of money the family has after the family has been congratulated on the amount they have won (even if it was nothing! (BFHKMP)). The option to continue or start a new game will also be provided if a player won. By continuing, the game will be played through again, with everything the same except for each individual round. By starting a new game, you will be back at the title screen.

6 - Face-Off 9

This section is not actually a round in the game, but instead was created as a separate section in order to help you understand how the face-offs work in the game. Face-offs occur throughout the game when two families are against each other. This section only applies to the Single Round, Double Round, and Triple Round of the game.

There will be two family members, one from each family - which are called contestants - at the face-off stand (NOTE: Typically in the television game show each contestant would shake hands before the face-off officially begins, but this game just ignores this rule). It begins first with announcing what type of people and how many people were surveyed, and then the surveyed question will follow. The contestants will first have be able to ring-in as soon as the box is blank, and until a few seconds after the question has been fully asked.

The first contestant who rings-in will be given the opportunity to answer the question. If the answer is on the board, it will be displayed along with the amount of points it is worth. If the answer is the number one answer on the board (the one worth the most points), the answering contestant will have won the face-off. If the correct answer is not number one, the other contestant will have the opportunity to answer the question also. If this answer is in higher position on the board than the current one up there, this contestant wins the face-off. If the answer is in a lower position, the other contestant loses the face-off. If both answers are worth an equal amount of points, the first contestant who answered the question will be considered the winner of the face-off.

If both contestants say an incorrect answer, they will be switched with the next family member in their line-up. The same question will be asked, and the family who has the contestant who rung-in first will be the one to get to answer first. If the same question is asked to everyone (asked five times to all ten family members) and no one has given a correct answer, the question will be ditched and a new question will be asked, starting with the contestants who originally were up at the face-off stand. If both contestants do not ring-in in the amount of time given and the buzzard sounds, the contestants will switch with the next family member in line and a new question will also be asked. The face-off will continually proceed until someone says an answer that is on the board.

Thank yous go to the following:

<http://www.gamefaqs.com> - For hosting this FAQ, and every other thing the website offers.

<https://www.neoseeker.com> - For hosting the FAQs and other game helping files I create with no additional hassle on my part, and also for being the website that have lead many people who were in trouble originally to leave happily after finding this FAQ to fulfill their destined duty.

Denise Harbert - Major thanks goes to her for taking the time to look through most of the FAQ finding a lot of the little typos I created, and to notify me about each one found.

Johnny Diep - For notifying me about a missing question in the triple round.

Sean Roberson - For notifying me about a missing question in the double round and missing answers on a certain question in the single round.

Everyone who e-mailed me showing gratitude towards the existence of this FAQ - These people really let me know that my time wasn't at all put to waste, even if it wasn't actually used for it's initial purpose.

And, of course, you - I created this FAQ for the sole purpose to help you in the game, especially when times become difficult, in which also helped me to have motivation to complete this FAQ fully. Even if it's not going to be used for the intended SNES game, it's well if it can in any way help you when in need.
