PLAYING MODES

EXHIBITION

This mode offers two game play options. In a single match, you can select a national team and play against the computer or another human player. Two players can also join forces and challenge a computer opponent. The second exhibition feature is the shootout. This option gives you the opportunity to refine your goalkeeping and striking skills against another player or the computer.

TOURNAMENT

This mode lets you select your favorite team and take on the other 15 teams in a knockout quest for the world championship.

- ▶ Select [NEW GAME] to start from the beginning.
- ▶ Select [CONTINUE] to continue play.

Input passcodes to continue tournament. Unlike standard passwords consisting of letters and numbers, the Super Soccer game pak uses directional commands from your control pad to generate a continue code. To enter the code, move the cursor using the direction arrows, then press the B button to input a directional command or Y button to cancel a previous command.

SHOOTOUT

If a game ends in a draw, a shootout will decide the outcome. Each team will alternate penalty kicks. The team that scores the most goals in this round wins the game. Once one team is unable to overcome the goal difference (even if they score on each of their remaining penalty kicks), the team with the most goals will be immediately awarded the victory. If the score is still tied after both teams have taken five penalty kicks, the teams will continue taking penalty kicks until a winner emerges.

Penalty Kicks

Press the control pad in the direction that you want to kick the ball, and press the B button. The speed of the ball will increase if you press the B button again when the player kicks the ball.

Goalkeeping

Press the control pad in the direction that you want to move the goalie, and press the B button to make the goalie jump in that direction.

Shooting and Saving directions

The ball and the goalkeeper can be kicked/moved in the nine directions on the control pad. The ninth direction is selected by not pressing the control pad.

FOULS

If you use a shoulder charge on an opponent, the referee may call a foul. If the foul is minor, your player will be issued a yellow card, which is a warning for you to clean up your style of play. When a player receives a yellow card, the player's jersey number changes from white to yellow. Flagrant fouls that injure one of your opponents carry an automatic red card. If one of your players receives a red card, the player is ejected from the game and your team must play with fewer than eleven players for the remainder of the contest. If the same player commits two fouls, the player will receive a red card and be removed from the game.

The guilty player is ejected from the game.
The injured player must be removed from the lineup.
A reserve player will have to replace the injured player.

On the lineup selection screen, the name of the ejected player is displayed in red and the name of the injured player will flash yellow until a substitution is made. (See page 12 for details about switching players.)

Each team can only have four players ejected in one game. Your team will lose the shoulder charge capability if you receive four red cards in one game.

FORMATIONS

In the Super Soccer game pak, you can select a formation that matches your playing style and also defends your opponents strengths.

4-3-3

This formation's emphasis on balanced offense and defense makes it one of the most commonly used in the world today.

4-4-2

You can surprise your opponent with timely attacks from this defensive formation.

4-2-4

Using four defenders and four strikers maintains balanced control of the extreme ends of the field, but your two midfielders may have trouble with teams that overload the center of the field.

SWEEPER

This formation uses a sweeper to help the goalkeeper defend against an opponent's strong attack.

3-2-2-3

Use this formation if you want to control the midfield area and constantly pressure your opponent's goal.

2-3-5

This formation uses five forwards to launch big attacks. It's important, however, that the midfielders and defenders stay alert and avoid a quick attack by an opposing striker.

3-5-2

This formation is used to concentrate on the midfield battle. Three of your midfielders can also attack your opponent's goal.

3-3-4

The three defenders and three midfielders provide defensive support, so the four strikers can attack the enemy goal.
